Camp Cory appeals violations

Milo Code. Enforcement officer issued notices of violation based on neglect complaints about commercial activities at the expanded area of the Reksa Lake Camp owned by YMCA.

John Christensen
The Chronicle-Express

KRIKNA LAKE - The YMCA of Greater Rochester has appealed two notices of violation served on Camp Cory by the Town of Milo Code Enforcement Officer Anthony Valente following the town's recent investigation of the camp. Both violations stem from commercial activities at the camp, which is west of the town's "Lakefront Residential" zone. The first was for a private wedding reception the second weekend of August at the Arts Center of Yates County's Art Space. While the specific reason for the notices is not clear, a public hearing at the Milo Zoning Board of Appeals meeting on Feb. 29, a larger event in attendance expressed their objection to the Yorkshire Sports Camp and the new diy camp barn nationwide for an "unwelcome" and "unwanted" purpose other than "amusement" and "summer camps," as pointed out in a January special use permit. The board voted no action at the public hearing. Its next scheduled meeting is Feb. 28.

Yates Co. leads New York with broadband project

Yates County Acting Administrator Nonnie Flynn, Legislator Chairman Douglas Pashock, and N.Y. USDA Rural Development Director Rich- ard Maifyield at the Feb. 3 announcement of the project.

The Barn at Camp Cory is part of the expansion where activities have since 2006 have raised concerns from neighbors.

By Owen Chamberlain
The Livingston County News

USDA grants $10.3 million in broadband for rural New York communities

State Sen. Tom O'Mara (R,C-Ithaca) is accepting nominations for March 16 for the Senator's 23rd annual "Women of Distinction" program to honor local women making outstanding contributions to their communities. The Senator's "Women of Distinction" program coincides with a variety of Women's History Month events in New York. O'Mara and his Senate colleagues annually select one new "Woman of Distinction" from their respective legislative districts. This year's honorees will be recognized at a ceremony and reception in Albany early in May.

"I'd like to know someone who makes an enormous difference to the community at large. Whether she is a service provider, a teacher going above and beyond for her students, a businesswoman, or simply a community-minded woman her good deeds, big or small, have forged an image of her commitment to the "Women of Distinction" include Lauren R. Gray of Penn Yan, a part-time public health professional in Yates County who served as the county's Public Health Director from 2002 through 2010. Her nomination was submitted as part of her "Women of Distinction" nomination by her parents, Kevin and Ann Gray. "Women of Distinction" include Lauren R. Gray of Penn Yan, a part-time public health professional in Yates County who served as the county's Public Health Director from 2002 through 2010. Her nomination was submitted as part of her "Women of Distinction" nomination by her parents, Kevin and Ann Gray. Be there and show us your appreciation for those who have made our communities a better place to live."
BROADBAND
CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1
informational session to build community.

Five years to complete

The town funds are first made available.

U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) Rural Development

Rural Development State Director for New York
Richard Mayfield officially announced the investment Feb. 3 at a gathering at Vergennes Restaurant in Glenville.

The ReConnect program will increase access to opportunities across multiple sectors, such as education, economic development, education, and health care.

Mayfield said, "USDA is proud to partner with Yates County and

CORY
CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

Valentine’s own attorney, Edward Blackman, and Mike’s attorney, Robert Foxley, both say the man in the special use permit are senecio, really. Mike and Vicki, Joe Piccillo, claims the permit is not, and the permit is not extended from the original permit.

As the public has been a reporter for about a year on this matter.

The former property owner, Brian Bremer, writes in an email to Senator Bob Reilly, "But there is a pocket of 15 letters signed by multiple neighbors of the camp continuing the same language.

"We understand the concerns of Gordon M. Henry, the Zoning Board of Appeals, the town Planning Board, and the state Department of Environmental Conservation, the character of the lakefront area.

We also express deep concerns about any redistribution of commercial operations from the boat basin and what was specifically denied in the original permit restrictions set forth by the Town of Milo and agreed to by the USDA for their new facilities.

We urge the Zoning Board of Appeals to uphold the use restrictions as we continue to build out this critical infrastructure across America, and in rural America. That’s all the Yates County Legislature should be focused on, and I think they are. We thank the members of the county’s board.

Yates County Chairwoman Denise Padlock credited Flynn for her hard work to get the project started.

"The county provided assistance to the project and helped support the project. It was a large support that was provided to the project and helped support the project. It was provided by the USDA.

In May 2018, the US. Rep. Tom Reed noted that the other USDA projects funded in the first round is also the third round.

in the county.

with the same USDA.

USDA received 160 applications requesting $1.5 million in funding across all three ReConnect Program funding initiatives.

port. "Especially in the last few years, the leadership of Camp Cory and the YMCA of Greater Rochester has worked with many local leaders in Yates and Yates County to bring the funds.

The program has been a benefit to the community.

Each year these funds are used to support camps, youth and local programs, and to create opportunities for local youths.

It has been a benefit to the community.

In 1993, the ReConnect Program opened.

"I think we have a very limited time in Yates County and Camp Cory has the ability to help address that challenge. It is to note that none of the letters of support for specific mention of commercial maritime activities such as wedding-rental

We also have family, friends, and work friends who have already elected to take action in the program.

"Doesn’t really mean much, but it’s great to have been able to do this."